

As an Interior Designer, the one thing that has always intrigued me is the process of transforming ideas into actual spaces. Along with being creative and enthusiastic, I am inclined towards making appealing, comforting and safer environment for users.

The most relatable quote I've read after been working in the field for almost 3 years is, "Most clients know they need designers. Very few know what to ask them."

I believe it to be true as most times the client can only tell what they want after they see it, and I've managed to learn to ask the right questions and understand their problems. As designers, our job is to provide creative solutions. Once we are able to do that, the design process gets easier for everyone.
